

Continuing Medical Education (CPD)

Although relatively small in number, dermatologists form a sociable community and meet frequently. We have very well developed scientific, educational and training programmes with local, regional, national and international meetings playing an important part in our ongoing education. Most departments have regular local meetings with interesting cases for discussion; regional societies meet through the year; and the British Association of Dermatologists, the British Society for Investigative Dermatology, the American Academy of Dermatology and the European Academy of Dermatology & Venereology meet annually. Add to these annual meetings for most of the sub-specialty groups and you can see that we are spoilt for choice when it comes to deciding where to spend our study leave.